Administrative information

The Colored Methodist Episcopal (C.M.E) Church began on December 16, 1870, when forty-six black delegates met in Jackson, Tennessee, to form an organization that would allow them to appoint their own bishops and ministers without the necessity for them to be officially sanctioned by the white Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The white church, which was represented at the Jackson meeting, supported the formation of a separate black denomination at the 1866 General Conference because so many of its black members had left to join other Methodist bodies. By 1890 the church's membership was 103,000. The name of the church was changed to the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church in 1954. The church held annual Episcopal District conferences presided over by a bishop, and a General Conference every four years.
