MSS0430. Lloyd Binford collection finding aid

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.memphis.edu/speccoll-findingaids

Recommended Citation

This Finding Aid is brought to you for free and open access by the Special Collections at University of Memphis Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Special Collections Finding Aids by an authorized administrator of University of Memphis Digital Commons. For more information, please contact khgerry@memphis.edu.
Lloyd Binford collection

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title:</th>
<th>Lloyd Binford collection</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Collection No:</td>
<td>MSS.430</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extent:</td>
<td>0.25 cubic feet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abstract:</td>
<td>The collection contains copies of letters and articles written by Lloyd Binford, Chairman of the Memphis Board of Censors (1928-1956).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Processed by:</td>
<td>James E. Montague, August 2003; Gerald Chaudron, February 2014.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Access:</td>
<td>Open to all researchers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Language:</td>
<td>English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preferred Citation:</td>
<td>Lloyd Binford collection, Special Collections Department, University Libraries, University of Memphis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Publication date:</td>
<td>February 2014</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Biographical information

Lloyd Tilgham Binford (1866-1956) was born in Duck Hill, Mississippi, the son of an infantry colonel and future state senator. He left school at the end of the fifth grade and worked for the Illinois Central Railroad before joining the staff of the Woodmen of the World. He then joined the Columbia Mutual Life Insurance Company and rose to become president of the company in 1916. Binford moved the company from Atlanta to Memphis and was responsible for building the Columbia Mutual Tower (later the Lincoln-America Tower) in 1925.

Prominent in many civic organizations, Binford was named chairman of the Memphis Censor Board in 1928 by the city’s political boss, E.H. Crump and stayed in the job for 28 years. The board had been formed in 1911 to "censor, supervise, regulate, or prohibit any entertainment of immoral, lewd, or lascivious character, as well as performances inimical to the public safety, health, morals, or welfare." Though it had broad powers, the board had not used them often until Binford became chairman. By the 1940s, Memphis became known for having the strictest film censorship in the country. Binford opposed any fraternization between blacks and whites and giving prominence to black actors. He was sensitive also to any negative portrayal of Southern life and undermining of public morals. As a result, many films were banned or cut, forcing Memphians to go to Arkansas if they wanted to see them. Though ill-health led him to resign several times, he was persuaded to stay on until finally stepping down in 1956.

Sources:

Scope and contents

The collection contains carbon copies of two typed letters written by Lloyd Binford, Chairman of the Memphis Board of Censors disapproving films. One letter (circa 1946) was written to David O. Selznick regarding “Duel in the Sun”. The other (circa 1947) was written to United Artists Corporation about “The Macomber Affair”. There is also a copy of the public notice disapproving “Duel in the Sun”. The collection also contains copies of articles by Binford and one submitted to Collier’s Magazine in 1950.
Related materials

Subject terms

Binford, Lloyd T., 1866-1956.
Censorship—Tennessee—Memphis.

Inventory

Box 1

Folder

   Official notice re: decision not to accept “Duel in the Sun”, undated.
2  Letter and article (copies) submitted by Binford to Collier’s Magazine, New York, 1950 May 30. Sent in response to article in Collier’s May 6, 1950, issue “You Can’t See That Movie”.
   Articles written by Binford (copies), undated: “‘Hollywood Changes for the Worse’: Pornographic Propaganda”; “The City of Happiness is in the State of Mind: ‘Keep the Mind Young and the Years Won’t Matter’.”