Biographical information

Bryant Winfield Culberson Dunn was born July 1, 1927, in Meridian, Mississippi to Aubert Culberson and Dorothy (Crum) Dunn. Dunn's father served in the United States House of Representatives from 1935 to 1937. Winfield graduated high school at the end of the 1944 fall term and then enlisted in the U. S. Navy. He was sworn in as Hospital Apprentice First Class in 1945. He served in the Navy for eighteen months and then attended a junior college for one year before being admitted to the University of Mississippi. While at the University of Mississippi, Dunn was president of the Kappa Alpha Order, President of the School of Commerce and Business, chosen as Cadet Colonel of the ROTC, and was admitted into many honor societies. He also met his future wife, Betty Jane Prichard. After graduating with a business degree, Dunn worked in insurance. He then attended dental school at the University of Tennessee, Memphis, and went into practice in Memphis.

Dunn began to involve himself in Republican politics after reading a book by Senator Barry Goldwater in which he introduced a more conservative approach to dealing with the problems of the United States. Dunn ran for the State Legislature of Tennessee in 1962 but was defeated in Democratic West Tennessee. He later held the position of Shelby County Chairman for the Republican Party, in which capacity he was able to show support in Memphis for presidential candidates Barry Goldwater and later Richard Nixon. In 1970, Dunn began his gubernatorial race. Overcoming his opponents in the Republican primary with the help of Shelby County voters, he went on to defeat John Jay Hooker in the election and in 1971 became the first Republican governor of Tennessee for 50 years.

Despite initial Democratic Party opposition in the legislature, Dunn was able to raise sales taxes to fund highway construction and grant a state employee pay raise. He created government departments to foster development and administer state purchases. He also supported the 26th Amendment to the Constitution to lower the voting age to 18. Unable to run for a second consecutive term in 1975, Dunn left office to work for the Hospital Corporation of America.

Dunn remained active in politics following his term as governor and in 1986 he gained the Republican nomination for governor but lacking support in east Tennessee he was defeated by Democrat Ned R. McWherter. He then worked for Medshares and served on the boards of two healthcare companies. Dunn was also involved with various educational and charitable organizations, and served on the Board of Trustees for the University of Tennessee as well as Tennessee State University. He remains active in charitable organizations and is an elder statesman in the Republican Part. In 1988 he chaired the state steering committee for George H.W. Bush's presidential campaign, in 2004 he cast one of Tennessee's electoral votes for George W. Bush, and in 2008 voted for John McCain.

Dunn and his wife have three children, Chuck, Gayle, and Julie. Currently, the couple lives in Nashville, Tennessee. In 2007, Dunn's book From a Standing Start: My Tennessee Political Odyssey was published.
