By

T. O. Fuller
"BRIDGING THE RACIAL CHASMS"

A brief survey of interracial Attitudes and Relationships.

This book has recently come from the Press. It is dedicated to the cause of interracial good will, understanding and cooperation.

In every urban or rural Community, there are people who differ as to race, color, religion or nationality, but who have many interests in common: and some way should be found for such contact as would promote the Community spirit and such oneness of purpose as would facilitate cooperation in things most vital to all parties concerned.

"Bridging the Racial Chasms" undertakes to point the way to a better understanding among people who are not possessed of the neighborly spirit on account of certain differences for which none of them are in any way responsible.

The Author is delighted with the reception accorded the little volume by readers on more than two of the great continents of the World.
