Biographical information

Myrtle Kyle Lockhart was born in Bluff City, Sullivan County, Tennessee, on July 20, 1874 to Zedekiah Newton Lockhart (1848-1895) and Katherine Kyle Lockhart (1847-1928). She had two sisters: Anna Meade (1882-1943) and Mayme (1885-1965). Myrtle married Homer Fergus Sloan (1872-1952) in 1895. Homer was the son of William Comfort Sloan (1833-1902) and his second wife, Elizabeth Jane Cravens Sloan (1847-1897) of Smithville, Arkansas. Captain W. C. Sloan served in the 30th and later the 25th Arkansas Regiments during the Civil War from March 1862 and later served in the 45th Arkansas Mounted Infantry. W.C. Sloan was a successful businessman having started the Sloan-Mercantile Company in Imboden in 1884 with O.C. James and W.M. Childress. The Sloan-Mercantile was later re-named Sloan-Wilson Company after Childress sold his share of the store and W.J. Wilson was brought in. Sloan was reputedly the richest man in Lawrence County and he supported the establishment of Sloan-Hendrix Academy in Imboden in 1899. Homer and Myrtle had two children: Elizabeth Kyle (1896-1976) and William Comfort (1897-1984). Homer owned Willbeth Plantation near Marked Tree, Arkansas. Myrtle was involved with various patriotic organizations such as the Daughters of the American Revolution, becoming Arkansas state regent, and the United Daughters of the Confederacy, becoming president of the Arkansas Division. Elizabeth Sloan attended school in Memphis, Tennessee, and the family had a house on Peabody Avenue. Myrtle Sloan died in Memphis on January 30, 1943.

Scope and contents

The collection comprises mostly Myrtle Sloan's genealogical research into her family and the family of her husband. There are some materials related to her involvement with various patriotic organizations and scattered items related to members of the family.
